not sitting there with a stopwatch and pen waiting to write down your time once your eyes finish moving over the last word in this chapter.

Recite

Every now and then during the reading process, stop reading and see if you can recall what you just read about. Try to recall the main info, the important concepts, definitions, etc. If you can't recall it right after you read it, how do you expect to recall it on the test?

SAY IT OUT LOUD!

Review

You should read with a purpose (know why you're reading the chapter), re-read, see how many concepts from the chapter you can write down. Finally, join a study group! You should review with other people; quiz them – quiz yourself!
